PRESENTIMENTS.

An Investigation of the Causes of Those Dark Forebodings which Make Powerful Men Weak.

[Golden Rule.] Much apprehension has been occasioned throughout America from the announcement made by Professor Proctor that the return in nineteen years of the great comet of last summer will cause the destruction of the earth. But while people are becoming so strangely exercised over this announcement, an event of far more serious importance, which is taking place to-day, seems to be almost wholly overlooked. The nature of this most vital subject can be best explained by relating the following expe-

Bishop E. O. Haven, known to the entire land, was unaccountably awakened one night out of a sound sleep, and lay awake until morning. His mind seemed unusually active, and he not only reviewed his past life, which had been an eventful one, but laid extensive plans for the future. He did not feel especially ill, but could not account for the unusual activity of his brain, nor for the restlessness which seemed to possess him. In the morning he had but little appetite, but was apparently well in other respects. In a few days, however, he began to feel restless and morbid, although he tried earnestly to overcome the feeling which had taken possession of him. But try as he would the shadow of some evil seemed to follow him. and he was conscious of a gradual sinking and wasting away of all his physical faculties. He had been an earnest and diligent worker, in his zeal frequently overtaxed his strength, and being absorbed in his duties failed to observe the common symptoms with which he was afflicted, thus permitting the work of destruction to go on unheeded. But the end finally came in a most peremptory manner. Shortly before his death he wrote a letter-the last one he ever indited-in which he speaks as follows: "A belief that death is near affects different minds differently, but probably all who are in a fair condition of physical and mental strength instinctively shrink from it with an indefinable dread and horror. A dying man is no more able of himself to foresee his own destiny or the destiny of those he leaves than he was before he began to die."

The recent sad and sudden death of Hon. Clarkson N. Potter is one of the most serious warnings ever given in the long list of innumerable cases of fatal neglect. It is not sufficient to say that many other brilliant men, including Everett, Sumner, Chase, Wood, Wilson and Carpenter, were swept away ly the same fatal trouble. The question is, were these men sufficiently careful of their health, and could they have been saved? The Albany Argus, in speaking of Mr. Potter's sudden illness and death, says:

"One of the physicians who attended Mr. Potter here was interviewed last evening. He stated that Mr. Potter's inability to converse had for some time served to baffle the physicians in their efforts to determine the root of his illness. It seems, however, that Mr. Potter. some two years ago, suffered a slight attack of kidney disease. Unwise dependence upon a robust constitution and naturally perfect health, and neglect of proper clothing, doubtless sowed the seeds of a disease that needed but some such personal neglect as that of Tuesday morning to develop. From the symptoms at first shown, it was thought that his only trouble was nervous prostration; but his long continnance in a semi-unconscious state led to the belief that his illness was seated in a chronic difficulty more mysterious and dangerous."

Up to the latter part of last year Mr. Edward F. Rook a member of the New York stock exchange, was doing business in Wall street, New York. He had everything to encourage him, and make life happy, but was the victim of unaccountable unessiness. His experience as described by one who knew, was as follows: "At unexpected times, and on occasions when he had the greatest reason to feel joyous, he was irritable and haunted with strange feelings of discontent. He endeavored to check these feelings and appear pleasant, but it required a great effort to do so; after which he would again relapse into his former morbid mood. This feeling continued for a number of months, when he became conscious of an added sensation of lassitude. He was tired even when resting, and although experiencing no acute pain, had dull, aching sensations in his limbs and various parts of his body. Shortly afterward his head began to ache most frequently and his stomach failed to digest properly. Being told that he was suffering from malaria he consulted an eminent physician, who informed him that his kidneys were slightly effected, and gave him medicine to restore them. But he grew worse instead of better. He then consulted other eminent doctors of another school and was informed that he had a brain difficulty somewhat in the nature of a tumor, but in spite of all efforts to the contrary he continued to grow worse. At this time his condition was terrible. What were at first simple symptoms had developed to terrible troubles. He was flushed and feverish, constantly uneasy, and yet always weary. He had an intense appetite one day and very little the next. His pulse was irregular, his breathing labored, and every moment of existence was a burden. These disastrons symptoms continued, his face and body became discolored, his heart was irregular in its action, and his breath came in short, convulsive gasps. He grew constantly worse, notwithstanding the utmost precautions of his friends and finally died in the greatest agony. After his death an examination as to its actual cause was made, when his brain was found to be in a perfect condition, and the reason of his decease was of an entirely differ-result of one disease. That disease, which so deceitfully, yet surely removed the people above mentioned was Bright's disease of the kidneys. In the case of Mr. Rook the examination after death, while showing the brain to be in perfect condition, revealed the terrible fact that he was the victim of a slight kidney trouble, which had gone on unchecked, until it resulted in acute Bright's disease. The leading physicians and scientists of the world are fast learning that more than one-half the deaths which occur are caused by this monstrous ourge. It is one of the most deceitful malasets itself by symptoms so slight and common, to seem unworthy of at ention; and yet hese very insignificant symptoms are the first stages of the worst complaint known in the history of the world. Thousands of people have died from troubles that are called heart disease, apoplexy, pneumonia, brain fever, and similar diseases, when it was, in fact Bright's disease of the kidneys. The ravages of this disease has been greatly increased from the fact that until recent years no way was known to prevent its beginning nor checking its increase when it had become once fixed upon the system. Within the past two years, however, we have learned of more than four hundred pronounced cases of Bright's disease, many of them much worse than those above described, and most of whom had been given up by prominent physicians, who have been completely cured. The means used to accomplish this end has been Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, manufactured in Rochester, N. Y., a remedy that has won its way into the confidence of the public solely upon the re-

be found. Although Bright's disease is so common in cities, it is still more prevalent in the country. When eminent physicians in the largest cities are not able to recognize Bright's disease, it is only natural that in the country, where there are few physicians of any kind, and those few so unacquainted with the disease as to call it by some other name, it should rage terribly and yet unknown to the ones who are suffering with it. Thousands of people can look back and recall the death of friends from what was supposed to be some common complaint, when it was really Bright's disease, AND NO ONE ENEW 17. The terrible pleuro-pneumonia, which has been so dreaded, is usually the result of uremic or kidney poison. Lung fever can be traced to a similar source. Most cases of paralysis arise from the same difficulty, as well as innumerable fevers, lung, throat, head and bowel troubles. A vast number of ladies have suffered and died from complaints common to their sex called, perhaps, general debility, when, could the real cause have been known, it would have been found to be Bright's disease, masquerading under another name. In marked contrast to the sad cases which have been above described, markable merits it possesses. As a result, it is more widely used and thoroughly praised than any medicine which has ever been before the American public. Indeed, there is not a drug store in the entire land where it cannot are the experiences of many prominent people who were as low as any of the persons mentioned, but who were remarkably restored to former health and vigor by this same remedy. Among this number are the following prominent names: Col. John C. Whitner, Atlanta Ga.; B. F. Larabee, Boston, Mass.; Gen. C. A. Heckman, Phillipsburg, N. J.; Rev. D. D. Buck, D. D., Geneva, N. Y.; Dr. F. A. Mc-Manus, Baltimore, Md.; Edwin Fay, Davenport, Iowa; Rev. A. C. Kendrick, L. L. D., Rochester, N. Y.; J. S. Matthews, Portland, Mich.; C. W. Eastwood, New York; Dr. A. A. Ramsay, Albia, Iowa; Chancellor C. N. Sims, D. D. Syracuse, N. Y.; Dr. S. P. Jones, Marienette, Wis.; T. S. Ingraham, Cleveland, O.; Henry T. Champney, Boston, Mass.; Elder James S. Prescott, North Union, O., who is a prominent member of the Shaker community, and many

To all candid minds the force of the above facts must come with special power. They show the importance of promptness and attention to the first symptoms of disordered health before disease becomes fixed and hope departs, They show how this can successfully be done, and that the dangers which await neglect can only with difficulty be removed.

ACROSS FRANCE IN WINTER TIME, To diffusive and extravagant Americans the most striking features of the country are the compactness of the habitations and the extreme economy-I may almost say the parsimony-of the method of tillage. Every square foot of ground is put to use; has been in use for unnumbered generations. Here and there in the distance appear patches of wood, carefully preserved and guarded, but the rest of the land is almost bare of shade. There is no brush or tangle of weed and wild flower by the roadside, no thicket by the stream. The last of these trespassers were eradicated ages ago, along with the last stump. A gray stone-wall borders the highway. The cross-roads are often sunk two or three feet below the general level. Narrow ridges of earth mark the boundaries of the fields, and the furrows are driven so close to them that it is a wonder how the plow is turned. Single rows of poplars stretch with exasperating regularity across the landscape. They are trimmed close, and sometimes every twig is removed except a bunch at the extreme top; then they look like liberty poles with bushes tied to them. There are willows by the brook, but they are pollard-willows, kept for their twigs, which are scrupulously cut off, and they lift their scarred and knotted trunks, like hands from which all the fingers have been amputated. One beauty of the country is in its fertility and the varied contour of the ground; but the traveler who looks upon it cannot help longing for a little of nature's luxuriant irregularity, and thinking how much more lovely the meadow would be if a clump of alders grew by the water, and a maze of clematis and bind-weed covered the boundary wall. We passed a village built in terraces upon a ridge of limestone. The rock under the houses was perforated with caverns closed by wooden doors, and used apparently as stables or store-rooms,-J. R. G. Hassard's letter to the New York Tribune.

WHAT A WOMAN MISSES BY NOT BE-

"A woman, being only a beardless woman," said the sad passenger, "will always, even though she succeed in obtaining the ballot, miss the manly experience of waiting sixty-seven minutes in a barber shop for a shave. She will never know what it is to study character from the chair."

"She will never see the nervous man," said the fat passenger, "who springs half way to his feet every time 'next' is called, and sinks back overwhelmed with bashfulness, and silently accused of cheek with an intent to commit fraud by all the other sufferers."

"She will never know," said the sad passenger, "what it is to be shaved by a man with a touch like a shadow and a razor that puts you to sleep in a minute, who fusses over you with towels and water and perfumes so deftly and lightly that you want to be shaved over

"And she will never know," said the woman who talks bass, "what it is to be shaved by the barber who eats garlic to cure his catarrh, and who ought to change his trade or learn to breathe through his ears."

And the pilgrims girded up their loins and the procession filed off down to tucky grace. Oneonta. - Burlington Hawkeye.

LORD BEACONSFIELD'S IDEAL.

If he had been possessed by a great love of truth or of humanity, all might have come right; he would have quickly worked through his youthful cynicism to something higher. But pride and ambition, the pride of race and the pride of genius, left no room for these sentiments. His intellect was skeptical. His heart was somewhat cold. Before him lay a world in which fame and power were to be won by the gifts which he knew himself to possess: the laurels of others would not let him sleep; and he threw all his soul into the pursuit of fame and power.

It was a poor ideal. But he seems to have thought it the only ideal, and probably looked on those who strove after some other as either fools or hypocrites. Early in his political life he said one day to one of the foremost of his political opponents (from whom the present writer heard the anecdote), as they took their umbrellas in the vestibule of the House of Commons: "After all, what is it that brings you and me here? Fame! This is the true arena. I might have occupied a literary throne. But I have abandoned it for this career." -Prof. James Bryce, in The Century.

A WONDERFUL PLANT.

American ladies will prick up their ears at the information that serkys is a plant much in use among the women of Eastern Europe in order to enhance and retain their charms. Its properties have been known to the Turkish women ever since the introduction of coffee into Europe. It is said to be a little here which grows at the foot of the mountains of Lebanon. A spoonful of it in a breakfast-cupful of boiling water forms a delicious infusion, which may be drunk with milk and sugar like ordinary tea, but is far more pleasant to the taste. Its great recommendation to the fair sex is that it has the virtue of retarding the ravages of age on all those who drink it daily. Dr. Paul Lucas, physician to Louis XIV., mentions it in his travels. He relates that, having been called upon to attend the widow of Hassan Pasha, he was surprised to see her waited upon by two young women apparently 25 or 30 years of age, whereas he knew it was customary for her to be waited upon by old women only. On expressing his surprise, he was told that both those young ladies were over 60 years of age. and that they owed their youthful appearance to the abundance of serkys tea which they drank, Dr. Lucas immediately asked for some of this plant, and took it with him to France. It is supposed that he made a present of it to Ninon de l'Enclos, and that it was the mysterious secret of her extraordinarily youthful appearance when old. There is a great run on this article in Paris just now, for the doctors have discovered that it purifies the blood and thus preserves the skin fair and transparent as in early youth. It also makes the flesh firm and is particularly conducive to a full bust. About three years ago it was reintroduced into Paris by a French doctor who had traveled in the East. In Turkey, where it costs but little, it is often mixed with the water of the bath. Taken, however, in the same manner as tea, twice a day, its effects are said to be certain. It costs five francs an ounce; but a thimbleful is enough for a breakfast-cupful of the infusion,-New York Hour.

THE Carson City (Nev.) Appeal says: St. Jacobs Oil is good for rheumatism, neuralgia and a thousand different ills.

Fogo has a new way of turning a compliment now and then. Seeing the elderly Miss Pangley in the street the other day, he tried to avoid her, but did not succeed. When they met, said Miss Pangley: "Oh, you naughty man! You wanted to cut me ! " Replied Fogg, blandly: "I should be cutting a pretty figure, wouldn't I?" Miss Pangley tells her friend, Miss Sagegreen, that Mr. Fogg is a perfect gentleman.-Boston Transcript.

Bed-Ridden and Cured. W. E. Huestis, of Emporia, Kansas, says that his wife has been sick nearly seven years, and for the last four months bed-ridden. She has been treated by a number of physicians and only grew worse. Her attention was called to Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" and "Favorite Prescription," which she commenced using. In one week she could sit up, and in three weeks could walk about. By druggists.

LOVE UNDER PECULIAR CIRCUM-STANCES.

When the French sought to establish a monarchy in Mexico a Mazatlan youth raised a regiment of boys and waged against such of the invaders as appeared in Sinaloa a warfare that told. The young man's father was of Castilian blood and his mother was a Mexican. His name, Corona, soon became famous, and at the age of 25 he was regarded as the Mosby of Mexico. At the end of the war he was a Major General, the hero of the soldiers and the idol of Mazatlan society. He was six feet tall, broad shouldered, handsome and daring. While attending a ball at the American Hotel, at Mazatlan, he stumbled over a domestic, knocking a tray from her hand. Stooping to pick up the crockery, Gen. Corona noticed that the girl was very pretty and very saucy. She told him that her name was Betty Bowman, that her mother was a San Francisco washerwoman and that he ought to know better than to rush headlong down a dark stairway. Corona made love to the American miss and before leaving for the capital he had learned of her irreproachable though face and pert ways haunted him so much that he wrote to her arranging for marriage by proxy. He remained in Mazatlan; the bride went to a convent school. They were a thousand miles apart and wrote to each other daily, the husband constantly instructing the wife in polite ways. President Juarez, fearing that Corona's popularity would lead the people to give their vote to the young soldier at an election then approaching, concluded to send him as Minister to Madrid, the most enviable diplomatic position in the eyes of all Mexicans. Gen. Corona took the washerwoman's daughter to his palace in Madrid and she is now regarded as the most brilliant and accomplished lady at the court of Spain.

IF PROFESSIONALLY, ALL RIGHT; IF PERSONALLY-!

"That reminds me," he said, "about a little affair that our friend Blunt, the city editor of the Kansas City Journal, once figured in. He had written or passed something that was particularly unpleasant to one of the parties mentioned. The fellow met him at a soda fountain in one of the public bar-rooms, and, tapping him on the shoulder, said : 'I think you're a liar.' Blunt had a glass in his hand which he had just drained. He looked formidable as he turned around and seized the enemy. 'Well?' he asked, 'do I understand that you call me a personal, or a professional liar?' The question staggered the man with a grievance: 'A personal or a professional liar? ' he echoed. 'H'm, I don't know as to that; I guess I mean a professional liar.' 'Ah, now you compliment me,' said Blunt, resting his glass on the walnut slab. 'If you had called me a personal liar I would have crawled your frame if it had been the last act of my life. ' They compromised on soda,"-Denver Tribune.

Removing the Capitol.

looviend ti (KO) A few years ago it was the fashion among a certain clique of politicians, whose utterances were echoed by a portion of the press, to clamor for the removal of the Capitol from Washington to some representative Western city near to the geographical centre of the country. The topic seemed to prove a seven days' wonder, however, and was soon forgotten in the rush and requirements of the Nation's urgent business. Now whether the Capitol will ever be removed or not is not near so interesting a question to some people as whether rheumatism can or will be removed from their bodies. The subject of the removal of this disease from the system has very successfully interested myriads of people, and from the extended expressions conveyed by the almost innumerable statements received from representatives of very humble life. Once away, Betty's every class of the community, we append the following brief selection, - premising for the benefit of the reader that the disease referred to is rheumatism or neuralgia and the remedy is that grand old pain panacea-St. Jacobs Oil. The Rt. Rev. Bishop Gilmour, Cleveland, Ohio: "Excellent for Rheumatism and kindred diseases. It has benefitted me greatly." Hon. Carter H. John Carr Moody, Esq., Counsellor-at-Law, Vallejo, Cal.: "The relief afforded in a short time was such as to make me disregard the evidence of my own senses." Capt, Paul Boynton, the World Renowned Swimmer "I do not see how I could get along without St. Jacobs Oil." Mr. D. W.
